International Companies

As the global marketplace becomes increasingly interconnected, the US government has drastically increased its disclosure and reporting requirements for international holdings and transactions. As a result, taxpayers can easily become overwhelmed by the tax issues related to international investments and business.

These concerns include:

- Ⓞ U.S. filing requirements for inpatriates and expatriates
- Ⓞ Disclosure requirements related to U.S. ownership of foreign property or a foreign business, including Foreign Bank Account Reporting (“FBAR”)
- Ⓞ U.S. withholding requirements associated with foreign ownership of a U.S. entity
- Ⓞ Planning and strategy to maximize the U.S. tax benefits of doing business internationally
- Ⓞ Contractual audits
- Ⓞ Foreign Tax Credit
- Ⓞ Determining the U.S. business classification of a foreign business entity
